Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO reviewed the Department of Defense s (DOD) and military services medical and physical fitness policies for reserve forces. GAO found that: (1) DOD has not adequately overseen the services implementation of its medical and physical fitness programs for reservists; (2) DOD requires reserve forces to be capable of deploying quickly to unexpected military contingencies anywhere in the world; (3) although the Air Force, Marine Corps, and Navy have adopted more stringent standards and separate their reservists with permanent medical conditions, DOD has allowed the Army to retain more than 22,000 reservists with serious medical conditions that may prevent them from deployment to a contingency; (4) the retention of medically nondeployable reservists is inconsistent with the current military strategy and can adversely affect wartime operations; (5) during Desert Shield and Desert Storm, about 8,000 reserve personnel were called to active duty and later found to be medically nondeployable; (6) the services physical fitness testing programs assess only general fitness levels instead of reservists preparedness for specific military missions; and (7) DOD may not be able to identify and prevent physical fitness problems because the services do not report fitness information as required and do not have controls to prevent the alteration of physical fitness test scores.
